Qualification Objectives: At the start of the twenty-first century, international aspects of economics and finance remain as important and controversial as ever. The objective of this course is to provide an up-to-date and understandable analytical framework for illuminating current events and bringing the excitement of international and, especially, European economics and finance into the classroom.

Content: In analyzing both the real and the monetary sides of the subject, the aim of this module is to build up a simple unified framework for communicating the grand traditional insights as well as the newest findings and approaches. In order to help students grasp and retain the underlying logic of international economics and finance, the theoretical development is motivated at each stage by pertinent data or policy questions. Throughout the module, there is a special focus on European aspects and causes and consequences of the euro area debt and banking crisis.

Lecturer: Prof. Dr. Wenzelburger is Dean of the Faculty of Economics at the Technical University of Kaiserslautern and heads the Chair of Macroeconomics there. His research focuses include the Financial Economics, Overlapping generation models, Theory of learning, Banking and Financial Markets.
